The gentleman grew interested and gave it some biscuit crumbs, which it ate, by degrees becoming more familiar and inclined to make friends. Just then some

Then the gentleman was taken very ill |. with a fever, and one day when he was just beginning to recover he sent his servant away and composed himself to doze off into dreamland he saw a horrible sight. Describing it, he says:

"Creeping into the room from the veranda, coil after coil, was a huge hooded cobra, the deadliest snake in all India, more than seven feet long, and as thick as a man's arm. For a moment I was fairly dumb with horror, and then, The most attractive day's outing is although I knew it was no use, I instinctively called for help; but my voice was so weak that it couldn't even have been heard in the next room.

"On came the snake, rearing up its horrid spotted head angrily, and blowing out its hood, as it does when it means mischief. It had already got to the foot crawl up when I heard a skirr of tiny feet across the floor, and I saw my moment, but went right at the cobra like a tiger, and gave it a bite that drew blood like the cut of a knife."

The upshot of the matter was, Tom my and the snake fought a duel, and upon its victory depended the life of the sick man. Again and again the ratsquirrel attacked the reptile, biting and biting, and always escaping the enemy's blows, until at last the rat-squirrel actually bit off the snake's head. But just as this happened, the snake in its floppings, knocked some glass off a table and the attendants in the house, hearing the crash, come rushing in.

As it turned out, the little rat-squirrel Rainfall, 24 hours ending 8 p. m .- 0. was what is known as a "mongoose."
